1. Stage of dogs

This interesting project allowed us to enter the fascinating world of great pets. After cleaning the data obtained from social networks, and after applying a spectacular machine learning process, based on neural networks (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=2-OI7ZB0MmU>), we can affirm with great emotion that the winning type of puppy is "Pupper" with almost 66% participation in the network.

Here, we have a best rated pupper. Congratulations Laika.

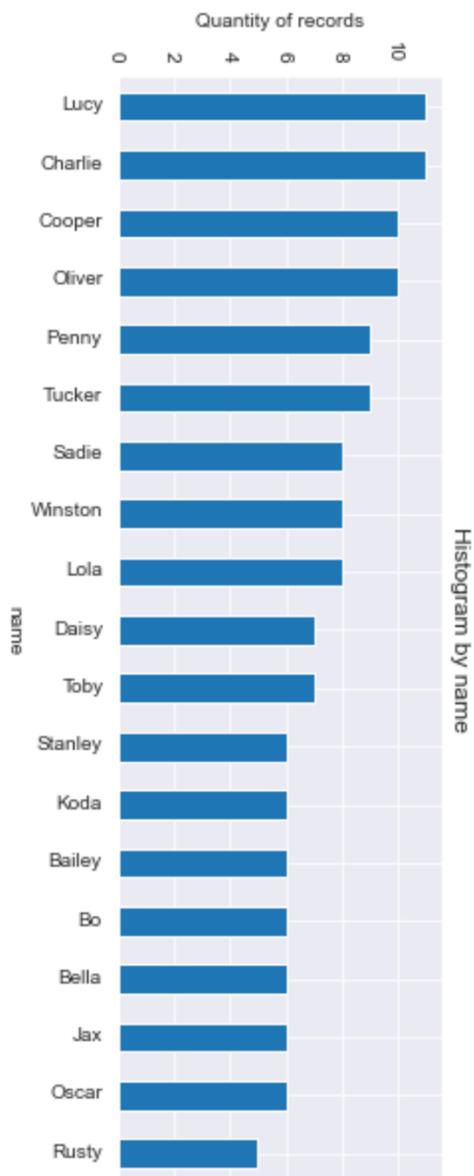

This is Laika. She was a space pupper. The first space pupper actually. Orbited earth like a h*ckin boss. 14/10 hero af

4. Interesting notes on the behavior of users on the network

- Great correlation between retweet_count and favorite_count.

It is interesting to highlight the close relationship that exists between the retweets that users make and how other users regularly select said tweets as favorites. It is very logical that this happens, and the good news is that indeed the analysis of the information and the evidence of the data of all the analyzed tweets allows us to ensure that this relationship is effective.
